WOMEN TO BAND TOGETHER TO HELP AFFLICTED CHILDREN

PROMINENT PHILANTHROPISTS INTER-ESTED IN THE WORK

A BRANCH OF THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY-

There was a large meeting held at the home of Dr. Egbert Guernsey, No. 180 West Flifty-ninth-st, yesterday afternoon, in the interest of the Guild for Crippled Children, which is located in the Chilren's Aid Society rooms, No. 224 West Sixty-

The purpose of the meeting was to draw attention to the work, so that at a special meeting, to be held next Tuesday at 11 o'clock, at the school, Women's Auxiliary to the now existing Men's

The Rev. J. Winthrop Hageman, rector of Christ Church, Riverdale, Loring Brace, secretary of the Children's Aid Society; Dr. Egbert Guernsey; Miss Robinson, the visiting tenement house nurse, and

Dr. Hegeman introduced Mr. Brace first, who spoke of what had already been accomplished by the Guild and the Children's Aid Society. He told how the work of Miss Darrach in the "Tent on the Beach," located at Long Beach, four years ago, where a small number of helpless little cripples. The first detail that strikes the artistic eye is spent a happy cummer, ended with the school being started in the rooms of the society. He spake of the hopelessness of crippled children of the extreme poor in the cheap tenement districts, their helplessness and the lack of education, which left them to grow up into vicious men and women, begging or stealing for their living. The object of the work to be done is to train and educate them so that they will be self-supporting. The Children's Aid Society gives the schoolroom and $400 a year for its support, and it is the hope of those identified with this movement to interest others, so that there may be at least $500 more contributed, besides necessary delicates for the cripples who are ill.

Miss Robinson gave a full account of the good being done and the great need for enlarged facilities. Her work is to visit the tenement districts and give such surgical aid and massage as she can to the sick poor. work to be done is to train and educate them so

NEW-YORK COOKING SCHOOL.

CLASSES IN SCIENTIFIC FOOD PREPARA-TION TO BEGIN NOVEMBER 1 IN THE

CHARITIES BUILDING. The New-York Cooking School gave an opening tea and reception in the beautiful rooms of the school in the United Charities Building yesterday Miss E. Huntington, the superintendent and the founder of the kitchen garden, was assisted in receiving by her teachers, Miss E. Slater, Miss J. Worstell and Miss A. Newell.

Classes for the fall and winter are forming, and the regular work of the season will begin No-

"This school," says Miss Huntington, "is not a domestic science school for the teaching of housework, but a cooking school, and its chief aim is to instruct the poor, chiefly girls in tenement houses and shop girls. The purpose of the classes for rich women is to add to our income and help to pay our running expenses."

The following classes have been arranged for the year: Women's classes, misses' and school girls' classes, classes in sick cookery for trained nurses, classes for deaconesses and missionaries, mission evening classes for working girls, classes for miseion and industrial schools and paying evening classes for women. The children's classes on Saturday will be taught, besides the regular cooking lessons, the thorough cleaning of dressers, brightening of silver, scouring tins, scrubbing floors and general cleaning

Two former students of this school are missionaries in China. Miss Breed, a graduate of the school, has conducted cooking classes among the negro girls and women of Norfolk, Va. From a normal class of twelve women trained by her, one is in charge of the Domestic Science Department of the Norfolk Mission College for Negroes, her class numbering about three hundred members;

OF ARCHITECTURAL BEAUTY.

THE ALIMAR, A PERFECT MODEL OF THE FIN DE SIECLE APARTMENT

At last the architect has devoted his resources to the ennobling of the "flat," and some of the new houses are gems of architectural beauty. Nothing could be more charming than the Alimar, at West End-ave. and One-hundred-and-fifth-st. It has an imposing façade, seven stories high, on the avenue, with entrance in the middle. The entrance hall is large, low ceiled, handsomely tiled.

Miss Mary Blackwell Sterling, one of her assistants, together with Miss Robinson, addressed the meeting in her stead.

There are two apartments on every floor, and as the building is a hollow square surrounding a gar-den, 41 feet 6 inches by 25 feet 6 inches, the statement that every room is light is no polite fiction.

The first detail that strikes the artistic eye is that the cellings are agreeably low. The reception hall is a feature that must bring gladness to the housewifely soul. The pretty fireplace, the picturesque oriel window, with seat below, the polished floor, on which rich rugs look their best, produce an effect of hospitality that puts the guest at ease even before a word of welcome has been spoken.

Opening from the side is the library, with a charmingly constructed window, so curved outward that a view of the avenue is commanded in both directions for a long distance. The parlor is next, and the dining room opens from the drawing room. All have handsome fireplaces and mantels in the Colonial style—the entire scheme of the interior is carefully studied Colonial.

A door from the back of the hall opens into a

AS WE GO ALONG.

What shall we do when the autumn weather And the autumn duties come together; When the golden days are fair and sweet, When the bright leaves rustle under our feet, And the air is a sparkling wine; Yet cares pile thick and the hours crowd fast, And things to be done go hurrying past. In an urgent, beckening line?

We must keep our hearts and our souls awake To beautiful things for duty's sake; With vision keen and with courage strong, Take beauty in as we go along.

What if in the hours of carnest doing
Our tired spirits need renewing;
Sigh oft for the streams and the pastures green,
Which lie in the realm of things unseen,
The beautiful Promised Land;
Yet ever before us stretches still
The rugged path of our Father's will,
With its common rocks and sand?

We need not wait for the longed for peace
Till our journey is done and our labors cease;
We shall rest in the midst of the busiest day
If the Master meets us on the way.

EMANUEL HOSPITAL HEARING.

Commissioner Stephen Smith, of the State Board of Charities, yesterday gave a hearing in the United of Charities, yesterday gave a hearing in the United Charities Building on the application for a charter for the Emanuel Hospital. An adjournment was taken until next week after one of the opponents of the hospital had been heard.
